Vance Beblow

Vance Beblow is an Air Force brat that now lives in Calgary, Alberta. After graduating from the University of Alberta I had the opportunity to live and teach in London and Cambridge for two years. This experience allowed me to adventure through Western Europe and make lasting memories. Afterwards, I taught Computers, Humanities and Phys. Ed for the Calgary and Foothills School divisions. I am passionate about integrating technology into the classroom in a meaningful and informative manner. My current role with Microsoft allows me to work with teachers to show them how technology can help revolutionize their teaching and learning environment.
