Program

Sometimes students need to leave the school setting. How can we design this exit so that students feel supported in addressing their needs and reasons for leaving as they exit, and so that their re-entry is a hopeful part of the exit conversation? When students who have left the school setting return to school, how can we create a plan for re-entry that will support their successful high school completion and address their needs?

Learn how to use tools in the Supporting High School Completion: A Tool Kit For Success resource to facilitate through and thoughtful planning conversations with students, families and community partners to support vulnerable students.

This learning opportunity is being offered through a high school completion grant from Alberta Education.
