Program

Advanced Training

Advanced Training both improves and boosts your delivery skills. We consider the effectiveness of the sensory experience during Tacpac by focussing on the sensory stimuli of music and touch and the responses within the brain.

This training enables you to:

- Develop your understanding of your own sensory responses
- Develop your powers of observation to enable more effective communication
- Understand the components of music at a deeper level, enabling you to guide your touch more intuitively
- Understand the development of the brain and the role of sensory experience
- Be more familiar with the use of Tacpac objects

Presenters

Susie Fuller

Susie has spent her teaching career working with children with SEN. Prior to this, she worked with both adults and children in residential care. Susie has specialised in supporting children with language and communication needs, including those with ASD (Autistic Spectrum Disorder). She received a post-graduate diploma in Language and Communication Impairment in Children (LACIC) from Sheffield University. She is especially passionate about using Tacpac to enhance interaction and attachment between children and their carers. Susie leads Tacpac trainings and alongside Hilary, continues to develop it to support the professionals who are using Tacpac with an increasing range of people. These include babies in hospice care, adults with profound disabilities and those with Alzheimer's.
